

BVI

November 3rd –11th, 2012

The British Virgin Islands are volcanic outcrops of a vast underwater plateau that stretches for more than 70 miles, where the Caribbean meets the Atlantic. 60 smaller islands form a protective ring around the crystal-clear aquamarine water. Visibility averages 100+ feet, with countless reefs, underwater caves, lava tunnels, and canyons. Not to mention all of the marine life. All this makes for a beautiful underwater exploration. You will be sailing on the Cuan Law through the British Virgin Islands. The Cuan Law is a 105' Trimaran, making it the largest in the world. Sailing from Island to Island with the wind in your hair, you will enjoy unlimited diving & fine food.
